

70 BELLEVUE DOCTORS, POISONED BY SALAD, BACK AT WORK TO-DAY

Only One on Staff Who Wasn't Ill Didn't Eat the Salad Yesterday.

Seventy doctors of Bellevue Hospital, who were poisoned by chicken salad yesterday, were in their places to-day, but there was a lack of the usual cheer with which patients are greeted. From fifteen to twenty of the doctors didn't make any pretense of working. They just sat out on the porch and sunned themselves.

And how they all came to be sick nobody knows. They had chicken salad for luncheon yesterday and the doctors pronounced it the finest chicken salad they ever ate. Of the big corps of physicians in Bellevue only Dr. Mark L. Fleming wasn't ill. The reason he escaped was that he didn't have any salad, and the reason for that was that he was too busy to eat.

Bellevue was a real hospital last night and the physicians gave their orders for the care of patients from their beds. Oh, but they were ill! Just imagine! All doctors and all sick! And they couldn't help themselves. It was 1 o'clock in the afternoon when they had their luncheon. It was 1 o'clock when the epidemic started. After each man had diagnosed his case he said "poisoned." After that every one said: "Chicken salad."

Dr. Fleming started an investigation to-day. The salad was made from the remains of the roast chicken served at the hospital on Wednesday night. There wasn't enough chicken to go around so the cook supplied the deficiency with roast veal.

Dr. Fleming's investigation demonstrated that the veal was as good as the chicken.

The mystery, it is suspected, is hidden in the eggs. But the eggs are gone. Every bit of that chicken salad was devoured by the doctors.

Dr. Howard, the resident physician, ate two plates of the salad, and in consequence was twice as sick as the rest of his medical brethren. He sat out on the porch this morning, bemoaning his fate.

"It was good chicken salad," he said, "but what was in it nobody seems to know, not even the cooks who made it."

SHAVING BALD HEADS.
(From the Atlanta Constitution.)

Bald-headed men take notice: This is not to be an account of a musical comedy, but something more intimately concerning citizens with bald heads.

Experiments repeated several months of times in China reveal the true value of the cure known as shaving the head. With the passing of the old Manchu dynasty, Chinamen are now legally permitted to cut off their queues and wear their hair out according to the style of the Occident.

An examination of the heads of several thousand young Chinese students now studying at Yenching University, the seat of shaving part of the hair for generations. On one man in four the hair has come out more luxuriantly than the part shaved. On one the hair has grown longer on the crown where the queue used to grow. On two there is no gain in hair on the part shaved, but the hair has come out uniformly.

From this it may be inferred that shaving is a cure for baldness is not what it is cracked up to be.

His Landlady's Advice Probably Saved His Life.

I feel that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my life. I inherited weak kidneys. The discharge was so frequent and painful that I would have to stay in bed to obtain temporary relief. I consulted good physicians but the results were disappointing. My landlady advised me to try Swamp-Root as the last resort, which I did and I was quickly relieved.

I continued taking Swamp-Root and my weight has increased fifty pounds. My health is of the best and I have told many others about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root and have done a lot of good in this way. Your wonderful medicine is of great value to mankind.

Yours very truly,
J. H. BRUNBY

THE SILENT BULLET!
The silent bullet—who fired it?
Whom did it hit?
Why was it silent?
The room in which it was fired was full of people.
No one heard the shot.
Why not?

All this denotes a pretty exciting and unusual mystery story, doesn't it?

Not the kind of story you get hold of every day.

The story's name is "THE SILENT BULLET."

It is by Arthur B. Reeve.

It will begin serial publication in next Monday's Evening World.

April 21.

Don't forget the date. You can't afford to.
